

National School Redesign Showcase Sharing our Stories

February 6, 2024

How might we create schools that are joyful spaces where we want to be?

Agency

the ability to take action and/or choose what action to take.

Belonging

being accepted as you truly are and as an equal participant in how things are created.

Connectedness

engaging in meaningful activities with supportive adults & peers where you are seen, heard, and valued.

How We Traveled to Today

Form a team consisting of students, teachers, leaders, family and other community members.

Designate a contact person.

Commit to engage in 3 design sessions (synchronously or asynchronously) between September 2023 and January 2024.

Share your experience with other schools involved in this design opportunity in February 6, 2024.

Selected teams will travel to Washington, DC in May 2024 for an all-day session with other design teams and congressional, US Department of Education, and White House Domestic Policy Council staff.

Your “How Might We” Statement

What that looks like, sounds like, feels like at your school.

Highlight insights about agency, belonging and connectedness that have emerged and continue to emerge for your school community.

What is your Redesign

Share your idea for responding to your how might we?
What is your idea/prototype?
A practice, structure, something else?
How will it work?

Share your journey in this process

Share your experience of observing, engaging and immersing yourselves in experiences of those in your school community to land on your how might we question.
We would love to understand what design decisions led to your prototype and how and who you were able to engage with your prototype.

Onward & Be Well!
